PREFACE

The materials contained in the present volume form a continuation of previous series of Kwakiutl texts published by me.

The history of the collection, the methods of recording and of publication require some explanation.

I have set forth the general development of my work on the Pacific Coast in the introduction to the description of Kwakiutl material culture in Vol. X of the Publications of the Jesup Expedition.

The first texts collected by me were a number of songs recorded in 1886. At that time I was under the somewhat naive impression that the missionaries who had translated parts of the New Testament were fully conversant with the language. My journey of that year was for the purpose of a general reconnoissance and for collecting Museum specimens. For this reason not much time could be given to linguistic studies for which I was, furthermore, ill prepared. Some prose texts were collected in 1893 during the World's Columbian Expedition, but the strenuous duties of my position as chief assistant of the Departement of Anthropology, did not give much time for research. During the Exposition I began to teach Mr. George Hunt, who was in Chicago in charge of a number of Kwakiutl Indians, to write Kwakiutl, his mother tongue. Although the son of a Tlingit mother and of a Scotch father, he had grown up at Fort Rupert among the Kwakiutl, and their language is his mother tongue. During my various visits to British Columbia undertaken on behalf of the Committee of the British Association for the Advancement of Science, appointed for the study of the North-Western tribes of Canada, opportunities for linguistic study were limited, because according to specific instructions by Horatio Hale, Editor of the Committee, linguistic work was to be confined to vocabularies and very brief grammatical sketches in the style of his pioneer work done for the Wilkes Expedition. In 1895 my time was so entirely taken up with observing and recording the winter ceremonial then in progress, that no advance was made in the study of the language. I merely succeeded in writing, as well as I could, the songs and brief formulas of the ceremonial. In 1900 I had a somewhat better chance to study the language in connection with the work of the Jesup Expedition.

In 1903 Mr. Hunt visited New York to arrange the collections made by him and by myself for the American Museum of Natural History and I was able to improve his own writing and my own hearing, but not as thoroughly as desired. It seemed then that no future opportunity to revisit Vancouver Island would present itself and I decided to publish the texts which Mr. Hunt had written, in answer to my requests and to specific questions, between 1895—1900. I may repeat here the remarks in regard to the texts, stated in the introduction to Volume III of the Publications of the Jesup Expedition:

"In 1893 Mr. Hunt began to record material in the Kwakiutl language according to the system of spelling adopted by me. On repeated visits to British Columbia I had an opportunity to critically discuss with him the material he had written, which resulted in constant improvement in his method of writing and in my knowledge of the phonetics of the language. I believe that the system of sounds adopted in the present volume represents the complete series of sounds that occur in the Kwakiutl language.

The records made by Mr. Hunt were transmitted to me from time to time . After I had made a study of the texts, I revised them critically, with the assistance of Mr. Hunt, in regard to both phonetics and grammar. This work was done during my visits to British Columbia in 1897 and 1900. Furthermore, the texts were critically gone over by me with the assistance of Mr. William Brotchie of Alert Bay, a half-blood Nimkish (one of the tribes of the Kwakiutl), who made the translation of the Gospels for the Rev. Alfred J. Hall. Wherever there was a discrepancy of opinion in regard to construction between Mr. Brotchie and Mr. Hunt, I have taken pains to investigate the doubtful points.

At the present time the phonetics of Kwakiutl are uncertain. This is particularly true of the pronunciation of ë, which is pronounced by Mr. Brotchie and many young men like ē, while Mr. Hunt and many of the older people pronounce this sound almost like êi. The same uncertainty prevails in regard to terminal sounds. Many of the Indians modify terminal sound according to the initial sounds of the following word; while others, particularly when speaking slowly, do not admit such influence. It is possible that the slowness of reading and writing these texts has eliminated a considerable number of cases in which the terminal sound of a word ought to be modified by the initial sound of the following word. There is particularly a considerable discrepancy of opinion as to the propriety of modifying the terminal L and terminal k', which, when followed by a consonant, are pronounced by many people ɬ and x'."

I had no opportunity to revisit the native villages on the coast of British Columbia until 1923 when I went to Bella Bella for a study of the northern dialect of the Kwakiutl language. Mr. Hunt served me there as interpreter and I continued to work with him whenever no Bella Bella informants were available. Twice more, in 1922 and 1927, I met Mr. Hunt for a short time in Victoria, British Columbia. In the latter year I corrected from his dictation pp. 160 to 162 of the present volume. I believe these are practically correct.

Although Mr. Hunt's writing has considerably improved, there are still doubts in regard to many points. Perhaps the most serious defect of his writing is the confusion between ā and ă or E (ə). I believe the later sound is by origin a short ă which is so much weakened that it takes its timber from the adjoining consonants. After palatized k sounds it becomes î (ɪ), after labialized sounds ŭ (ʊ). Since the ŭ is generally pronounced with very full breath, Mr. Hunt writes generally WE. Owing to the uncertainty of the use of ā there are many cases in which it is doubtful whether we should read wā or ŭ (WE). Another serious difficulty is presented by the unusually large number of glottal stops. Mr. Hunt does not distinguish clearly between voicing and glottal stops. Undoubtedly every initial vowel begins with a glottal stop. I believe all endings expressing invisibility (see F. Boas Sketch of the Kwakiutl Grammar, Handbook of American Indian Languages, Bulletin 40, Bureau of American Ethnology, pp. 527 et seq.) also end in glottal stops. The qa$^{\varepsilon}$ expressing final clauses has a glottal stop and is followed by a verbal form ending in a glottal stop. In regard to all these, great irregularities will be found in the printed texts. In some cases the stops are given, in others not. I must apologize for these inconsistencies which are due to my own lack of definite information. Equally uncertain are the initial glottal stops before m, n, w, y, and l. There is also uncertainty in regard to the use of â and o and the use of o, u on the one hand, and e, i on the other. The timber of the vowel depends to a great extent upon adjoining consonants. Each of the pairs i e and o u is evidently etymologically a single sound. In some passages Mr. Hunt substituted ă or E for ŭ.

While on the whole the grammatical structure seems to correspond to older Kwakiutl usage, there are undoubtedly numerous places in which Mr. Hunt, probably on account of the slowness of writing lost the syntactic connection. In his manuscripts passages are found in which the subject is expressed in objective form. When confronted with the fact he acknowledged that he had made a mistake. I have not ventured to make many changes because on the whole errors are not frequent although certain errors are liable to occur in the same passage a number of times, other consistent errors in other passages.

When the publication of the various collections of texts was started there seemed to be no prospect of a careful revision and since their value is as much ethnological and stylistic as linguistic, it seemed best to publish them notwithstanding their imperfections. In too many cases material of great value has been lost because the author waited to perfect and complete it and the unpublished manuscripts are lost to science. I present my material fully conscious of its shortcomings.

It is also regrettable that the bulk of the material has been obtained from one single informant. This leaves us in doubt whether we are dealing with individual or with tribal style. The collection contained in the Columbia University Contributions to Anthropology, Vol. II, is so far the only material that can be used for the comparison of styles of various persons.

The following is a list of texts so far published:

1. Proceedings of the British Association for the Advancement of Science, Report of the Committee on the North-Western tribes of Canada 1890, pp. 625—632, (Reprint pp. 73—80).
2. The Social Organization and the Secret Societies of the Kwakiutl Indians, Report of the United States National Museum, 1895, pp. 665—731; also short formulas in the text. (The phonetic rendering is inadequate, particularly that of names which I was unable to revise.)
3. Kwakiutl Texts, Publications of the Jesup North Pacific Expedition, Vol. III, 1902—1905 with vocabulary, 532 pages. See note in regard to the revision of the texts on p. 447. Pages 475—484 are revised versions of songs contained in No. 2. Contains a vocabulary.
4. Kwakiutl Tales, Columbia University Contributions to Anthropology Vol. II, 1910, 495 pages (Pages 1—243 contain texts dictated by various informants).
5. Kwakiutl Texts. Second Series. Jesup North Pacific Expedition, Vol. X, 1906, pp. 1—254 (Contains texts written by George Hunt between the years 1900—1903. See Introductory Note p. 2).
6. The Rival Chiefs, a Kwakiutl Story, by George Hunt. Boas Anniversary Volume, pp. 108—136. New York, G. E. Stechert and Co., 1906.
7. The Kwakiutl of Vancouver Island. Publications of the Jesup North Pacific Expedition, Vol. V, 1908, pp. 301—522. (Contains texts in regard to manufactures and customs, written by George Hunt.)
8. Ethnology of the Kwakiutl. 35th Annual Report of the Bureau of American Ethnology, 1481 pages, 1921, with vocabulary.
9. Contributions to the Ethnology of the Kwakiutl. Columbia University Contributions to Anthropology, Vol. III, 1925, 357 pages. (Dreams and Social Organization.)
10. Kwakiutl, An illustrative Sketch in the Handbook of American Languages, Part 1, pp. 423—557. Bulletin 40 of the Bureau of American Ethnology. Washington, Government Printing Office, 1911.

11. A Revised List of Kwakiutl Suffixes. International Journal of American Linguistics, Vol. III, pp. 117-131. New York, Columbia University, 1924.
12. Notes on the Kwakiutl Vocabulary, Ibid., Vol. VI, pp. 163—178. New York, Columbia University, 1930.

The following alphabet has been used:

ᴇ

i e, î, ê, a, ô, o u

ī ē, ë, ä, ā, â, ō ū

ᴇ obscure e, as in flower.

i e are probably the same sound, intermediate between the continental values of i and e.

î i in hill (= ɩ).

a has its continental value.

ô German o in voll.

o u are probably the same sound, intermediate between the continental values of o and u.

ë a somewhat doubtful sound, varying greatly in its pronunciation among different individuals between ē and êi.

ä German ä in Bär.

ᵘ indicates that the preceding consonant is pronounced with u position of the mouth,

In order to show the character of the changes which I have made in Mr. Hunt's writing, I give in the following an accurate copy of what he has written, my transcription, and translation.

It will be noticed that Mr. Hunt divides words in a manner different from my own. In many cases the division of his words corresponds to a glottal stop in a word. Furthermore, he writes all the prenominal elements, such as xa and sa, as independent words while I join them to the preceding word on account of the close phonetic association which brings it about that, for instance, a word ending in s and followed by sa will change to tsa. It is however true that under certain conditions xa and sa may be initial elements of a clause. Owing to an early misunderstanding Mr. Hunt uses ɫ for l and vice versâ.

[1] I recorded this song in 1892 directly from the singing of an Indian. Later Mr. John C. Fillmore recorded it independently from a phonographic cylinder which I had made. The present version agrees with the words of the earlier one and was written down by Mr. Hunt in 1926. The tune has been published in "Supplement to vol. IX, Internationales Archiv für Ethnographie, Leyden", 1896, p. 7.

[1] Pronunciation of Mink. See two versions of this song in F. Boas, The Social Organization and Secret Societies of the Kwakiutl Indians, An. Rep. U. S. Nat. Mus. 1895, Washington, 1897, pp. 562, 712. The intervals of the latter version were taken from dictation, the former from memory. The rhythm of the former version is probably more correct than that of the latter.
